

Matt Plec

Matt Plec has filled a variety of roles in the post production industry from compositing and 3D to software and pipeline development. In 2007 he joined The Foundry to head up the company's Nuke development effort during the product's transition from Digital Domain. He continues to work with the Nuke team as Product Designer, enjoying the challenges put forth by the industry's top visual effects artists and studios.